Assistant United States Attorney

John Joseph Moakley United States Courthouse

Dear Ms. Kearney,

Please be advised that, based on new information informally received from the Government of Turkey, the Department of State has determined that both offenses for which Turkey originally requested Eylem Tok's extradition meet the relevant requirements under the applicable bilateral extradition treaty between the United States and Turkey. Initially, the Department assessed that only the charge of protecting an offender should be forwarded to the court for its consideration. However, the new information provided by Turkey in support of its request is sufficient for the Department to forward the offense of destroying, concealing or altering evidence to the court for consideration as well.

Accordingly, once Turkey formally submits the new information to the Department through the diplomatic channel, as required by the treaty, I anticipate signing a new declaration in this case, making clear that the Department believes that both offenses in the original Turkish request are extraditable offenses under the treaty.

Sincerely,
